

Contracted Service (SP12)

SPEECH/LANGUAGE PATHOLOGIST

CESA 5 Speech/Language Pathologists (SLP) work with learners in the education setting who have a variety of communication needs.

Needs of Students

- Speech/Language Pathologists support communication needs such as:
 - Articulation
 - Fluency
 - Phonology Disorders
 - Pragmatic Language
 - Receptive and Expressive Language Disorders
 - Voice Disorders

Disabilities

- Speech/Language Pathologists may also work with students who have complex communication needs associated with other disabilities such as:
 - Autism
 - Brain Injuries
 - Physical Impairments

Service Delivery

- Several options are available for service delivery so that the student's individual needs are met. These options range from consultation and training with the student's educational team to one-to-one intervention with the student.

Training & Support

- Speech/Language Pathologists work closely with teachers to support and enrich communication development in the classroom and can work with school districts to provide training on communication-related topics.
